Grant Proposal Details

The Interstitial Arts Foundation (IAF) is grateful to Arisia for offering this opportunity to apply for funding. The IAF has strong roots and connections in the world of science fiction and fantasy, and is always delighted to be a part of the SF community, offering frequent panels, salons, and opportunities for discussion at conventions around the country. The Interstitial Arts Foundation respectfully requests $3,000 from Arisia to support Interfictions 2: a new Anthology of Interstitial Writing, and the discussions and community activities that will accompany the book's publication.

The Interstitial Arts Foundation, a non-profit group dedicated to the study, support, and promotion of art that crosses borders, works to break down the many barriers that force artists into categories and genres.

To support writers in their efforts to express their ideas freely and directly to their audiences, without the restraint of conventional genre limitations, the IAF has begun preparing for the publication of Interfictions 2: a new Anthology of Interstitial Writing, the second volume of original work by writers who joyfully seize the opportunity to explore the big imaginative spaces between genres—realistic and fantastical, scholarly and poetic—whether rooted in this world or reaching out to others. Our first volume, Interfictions, appeared in 2007, and was greeted with critical praise:

A wildly varied cacophony of a book, by turns beautiful, funny, frightening, frustrating, and baffling, but never boring.

—New Haven Review

"Odd, Deep, Delightful... Interfictions... belongs on the nightstand of anyone interested in the development of contemporary short fiction. I hope it spawns a series of such volumes."

—Atlanta Journal-Constitution

Interfictions 2 will feature 21 new stories, competitively chosen by editors Delia Sherman & Christopher Barzak from over 400 strong submissions from around the world. Contributors include award-winning writers Jeffrey Ford, Theodora Goss, and M. Rickert, as well as exciting new writers. (A full list of stories accompanies this application.) Many of these author's names are very recognizable from the worlds of science fiction and fantasy, others are best known from other literary traditions around the world.

In addition to the printed anthology, in the two months prior to publication, the IAF has established the Interfictions Online Annex, where we will be publishing free Interstitial stories online, to introduce new readers to a new kind of literature. As part of the activities accompanying the release of Interfictions II, the IAF will also host readings (some to include music and multi-media presentations), online and face to face discussions, and salons featuring both Interfictions writers and other interstitial artists.

Unlike many small presses who are able to pay only in copies of a book or magazine, Interfictions authors receive professional rates for their unusual work. The Interfictions anthologies are published and distributed by the Small Beer Press, well known in the science fiction and fantasy community for its highly professional production values and its award-winning publications. Like most adventurous new work, Interfictions costs more to produce than can easily be recouped from book sales alone. The Interstitial Arts Foundation relies on support from individuals and organizations to continue to offer the Interfictions anthologies and all its other activities.

We are requesting $2500 from Arisia to go directly toward publication of Interfictions, and $500 to support our online and face-to-face community activities that will accompany publication of the book this fall. We have attached a budget, detailing our expenses and anticipated income, and a timeline, detailing our anticipated calendar of events.

Thank you again for this opportunity to apply for support. We look forward to hearing from you.
